Representative Cases

Advisor to national and international companies in conciliation and arbitration proceedings. In one of his most significant cases, he represented a Portuguese investor in an investment arbitration involving claims of contractual breaches, violations of international investment law principles, and the declaration of internationally wrongful acts by the host State.

He has developed strategies for the out-of-court resolution of disputes across various areas. His work includes negotiating and executing collective labor agreements, facilitating commercial transactions between companies, and representing clients in legal claims and disputes.
