Representative Cases

With over four decades of professional experience, Eduardo Mayora has been involved in a wide range of significant legal matters, often entrusted—individually or in collaboration with others—with high-profile assignments. Notable highlights include the organization, incorporation, and launch of a private national bank; the development of the regulations for Bolsa de Valores Nacional, S.A.; and participation in both the 1996 and current preparatory commissions for the Securities and Commodities Market Law. As lead counsel, he oversaw the regulatory framework and execution of Guatemala's telecommunications privatization process. He also contributed to the technical commissions for the draft laws on Foreign Exchange Liberalization and the Monetary Law.

He has acted as legal counsel in most securities issuances by Guatemalan banks and companies in the New York market under Rule 144A, and has advised the board of Guatemala's stock exchange for over three decades. Additionally, he has served as both counsel and arbitrator in domestic and international investment and commercial arbitrations.
